

Abstract

The invention provides fusion polypeptides comprising protein transduction domains and osteoinductive polypeptides, as well as methods of using such polypeptides to induce osteogenesis and to promote proteoglycan synthesis. The 5 invention also provides osteoinductive peptides which have demonstrated the ability to induce bone formation in vivo.